

Global Institute for
Structure relevance,
Anonymity and
Decentralization i.G.

GISAD statement on https://ec.europa.eu/info/law/better-regulation/have-your-say/initiatives/13073-Combating-child-sexual-abuse-review-of-EU-rules_en.

GISAD (Global Institute for Structure relevance, Anonymity and Decentralisation i.G.) is an institute in fondering. GISAD wants to develop a digital system (EU-D-S) from the perspective of the citizens of Europe, which can hold its own in system competition with gatekeepers and a social credit system.

The aim of GISAD is to support the creation of a holistic Marshall Plan, as called for by the President of the European Commission, Ursula von der Leyen. The core of the Marshall Plan must be a digital concept adapted to civil rights and diversity. If individual measures are taken without an overall system of their own, Europe runs the risk of losing the system competition to other economic areas such as a centrally controlled China.

- GISAD's opinion is subject to the proviso that it is to be as part of an overall digital concept understood (multiple use of the same infrastructure without additional costs).

GISAD has defined three goals on which a Marshall Plan should focus:

1. The optimal refinement and simple exploitation of digital data, while maintaining diversity and performance-adopted involvement of all parties involved in the value creation.
2. The stigma-free, lifelong digital inclusion of all citizens with incentives for self-development.
3. The digital guarantee of the necessary state tasks to maintain security for citizens, the economy and the state, while preserving pre-digital democratic achievements.

Challenges:

GISAD welcomes the European Commission's initiative to tackle child sexual abuse. However, GISAD has already argued extensively at <https://ec.europa.eu/info/law/better-regulation/have-your-say/initiatives/12618-Regulation-enabling-temporary-continuation-of-specific-child-protection-measures-by-certain-communications-services> that new legislation will not be sufficient and may even counterproductively expand a surveillance state and restrict fundamental rights.

GISAD advocates the non-legislative option 2. In a holistic approach, must be the causes and not only the symptoms of child abuse eliminated. Children who are able to develop themselves, ask others for help for even minor offences without stigma, are much less at risk than children who are at the mercy of adult power. In many of the more than 40 statements on EU initiatives, GISAD has commented on this at <http://gisad.eu/statements/>. (There is a search box). Specific measures against child abuse will be insufficient. Rather, the prevention of child abuse is among many other aspects considered in the EU D-S.

Holistic essential measures in the EU-D-S:

- With the incentive of a digital citizen's money to get all new data on the internet assessed by several raters and entered into the EU-D-S with comments.
- With the possibility to move anonymously and without stigmatisation as a child in the EU-D-S and to exchange information with others, but to be identifiable in individual cases and according to a court order.